ETS TOEIC®

TOEIC® Listening and Reading Test

Recognised around the world as the global standard for assessing listening and reading English-language communication skills needed in the workplace.

Context	The TOEIC® Listening and Reading test is designed to assess a test taker's ability to understand explanations and instructions, follow public talks and announcements, understand workplace conversations and connect information in different real-world texts. Test questions are based on up-to-date, real-world workplace scenarios. Used by corporations, government entities and academic institutions to assess the English-language skills of potential employees or students, and by job seekers looking to prove their level of English proficiency.
Score range	Listening: 5 – 495 points Reading: 5 – 495 points Total Score: 10 – 990 points Four proficiency descriptions provided Correlated to CEFR* levels: A1 to C1 * CEFR: The Common European Framework of Reference for Languages
Duration	120 minutes (test sessions with an administrative section run about 150 minutes)
Structure	Multiple choice test, 200 questions Listening: 100 questions – 45 minutes Reading: 100 questions – 75 minutes
Advantages	• International standard for assessing English language competences • Doesn't require a declaration of English proficiency level before taking the test • Test questions are based on real-world workplace situations • Test taker receives an official score certificate with worldwide portability
Score usage	TOEIC Listening and Reading Public Programme: • Scores can be used internally within an organisation and externally worldwide TOEIC Listening and Reading Institutional Programme: • Scores are only valid for the organisation that conducted the test
Usage	• Companies and corporations – recruitment, developing career paths, employee evaluation • Universities – prepare work-ready graduates for success, make more informed decisions on student admissions, placement and exiting • Employees or job seekers – valuable addition to a resume, advantage in a work environment
Preparation	Any English language course with elements of Business English
Availability	TOEIC Listening and Reading Public Programme: • Public Programme sessions (photo required) – test sessions are held on fixed dates scheduled by ETS Global TOEIC Listening and Reading Institutional Programme: • Test sessions administered for groups and companies with flexible administration dates
More information	www.etsglobal.org

Find out more:

contact-emea@etsglobal.org   www.etsglobal.org